An's Claims Against UsagiShade

Hi, I'm An,

I never thought I would have to relive my past but I am now speaking out because he has publicly mentioned me in his video, addressing me as "my ex" to him sharing a screenshot where Kat claimed that "you forced the girl to sleep with you and she lived with you etc" and lastly posting photos that included me without consent, even though he censors our faces.

I would like to preface that Usagi and I dated from September 2020 to October 2021. I intend to set the record straight, support those he's harmed, and reveal the ongoing pattern of manipulation and abuse. I'll be addressing false information, sharing my experience, and providing supporting evidence regarding the allegations against him.

Timestamp 11:46 – My Ex's Old Friend Group

It's possible he is referring to an ex he dated shortly after our breakup. However, my name was still unnecessarily brought into their discussion, creating a false association between me and that group. Regardless of which ex the group is actually connected to, mentioning me in this context without consent was deliberate and irrelevant, highlighting his disregard for my privacy and boundaries.

He then reiterates:
"Like I said before, this was my ex's old friend group. I just felt the need to remove myself by association."

For clarity, I want to address the so-called "friend group" he references: During our relationship, I met Cass and Tet and introduced them to him. At the time, we were using a server that I owned. After our breakup, anyone who betrayed me or remained aligned with him was kicked, banned, or blocked, ending my connection with the group entirely.

This screenshot shows my final private messages with Tet and Cass, marking the last time I communicated directly with anyone in that group.

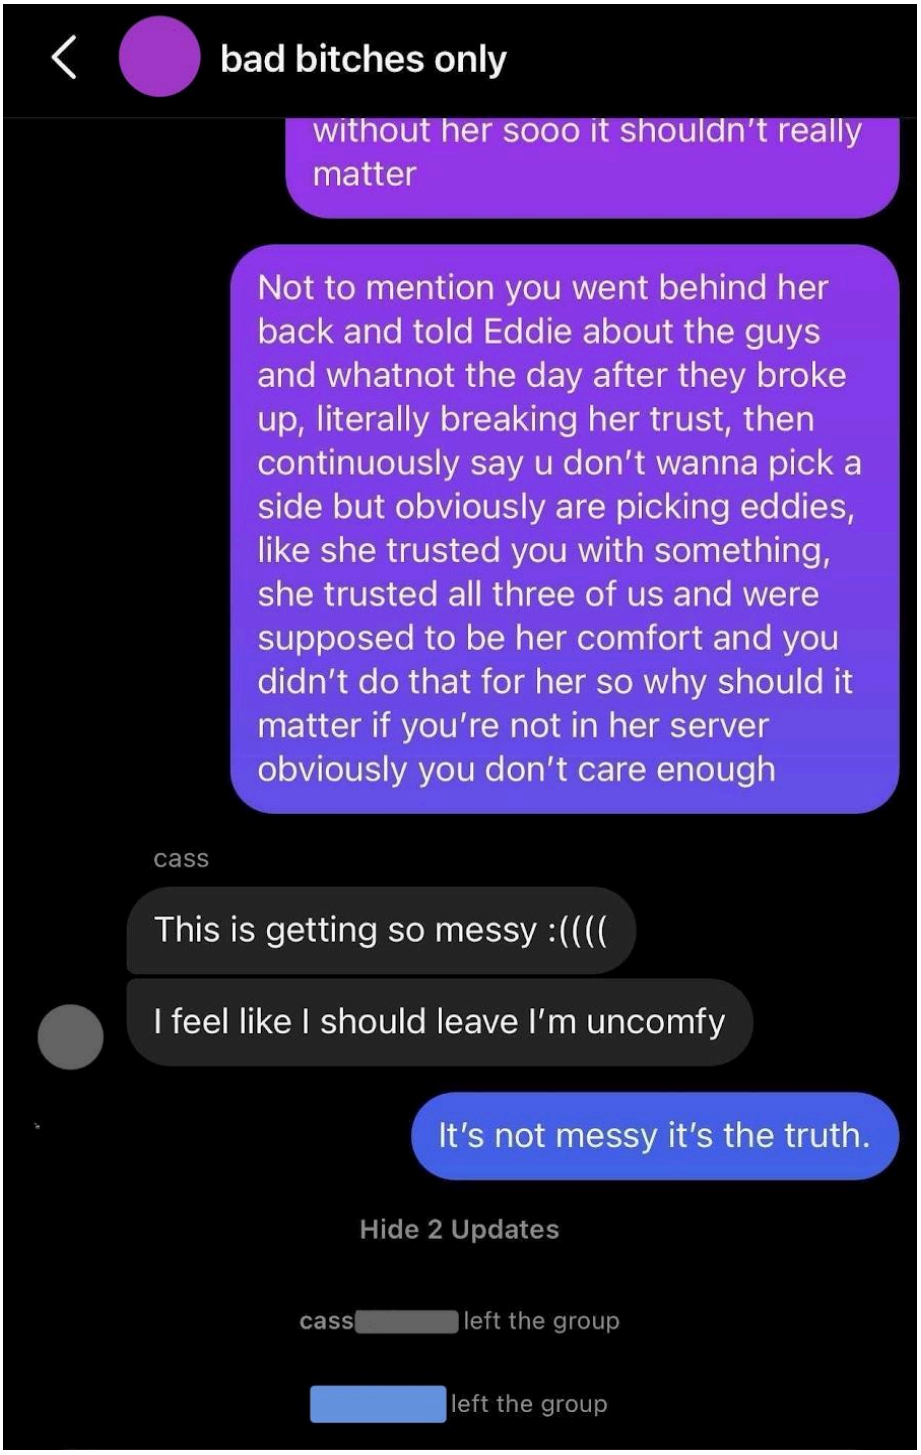
a few seconds — 10/10/21, 9:42 PM

Shortly after, a mutual friend who had also ended contact with the group confronted them for betraying my trust, including sharing private details and post-breakup plans to UsagiShade. This call-out highlights the seriousness of their actions and confirms that the group's harmful behavior was recognized by others.



bad bitches only
without her sooo it shouldn't really matter
Not to mention you went behind her back and told Eddie about the guys and whatnot the day after they broke up, literally breaking her trust, then continuously say u don't wanna pick a side but obviously are picking eddies, like she trusted you with something, she trusted all three of us and were supposed to be her comfort and you didn't do that for her so why should it matter if you're not in her server obviously you don't care enough friends and choices. Of everyone in this conversation, the only people I recognize are Cass and Usagi; the rest are strangers.

Timestamp 12:31 – Discord Screenshot Posted in Video

Originally, these Discord messages were posted on X (formerly Twitter) by a third party without censoring my name, effectively doxxing me and exposing my identity without consent. While I do not know or wish to target the person who shared it, the result was that my private information became public.

Years after our breakup, he continued to reference me publicly, including in his own video, where he shared the same screenshot censoring only my name while still drawing attention to the conversation.

In the video, he seems to assume that I or others are still hung up on him, despite the fact that I have fully moved on and have had no connection with him for years.

He wrote:
"I don't speak this language. Whenever An brought up pronouns in a normal sentence, I gagged on my cereal."

no shame to whoever cares about that sort of thing but it all just seems very delusional to me.
if you're sensitive to little things like that then why are you online?
i'm getting canceled now aren't i

At the end of the screenshot, he wrote:

- "No shame to whoever cares about that sort of thing, but it all just seems very delusional to me. If you're sensitive to things like that, then why are you online? I'm getting canceled now, aren't I?"

This statement shows that he is aware of the community and the issues surrounding pronouns, yet he dismisses genuine concerns as "delusional" and mocks those who are affected. His words are disrespectful, reflecting a lack of empathy and a refusal to take responsibility for the harm caused. By framing criticism as overdramatic, he further minimizes the experiences of those affected, reinforcing a pattern of ignoring the impact of his behavior.

Notably, he only ever showed the screenshot and never addressed the distasteful words within it.

Instead, at 12:41, he says:

- "I think these were definitely blown out of proportion, and the backlash was a bit overdramatic."
- "I don't have the energy to hate on anyone because I was raised by Sonic the Hedgehog."

He further adds timestamp 12:56:

"At the time, I simply didn't understand why people took things like pronouns so seriously. To be honest, I feel that way towards a lot of things. That's not me being transphobic. If anything, that's just me being clueless. Obviously, pronouns became a norm after a while, but that doesn't mean I have to use them. Me opting not to use pronouns doesn't equate to me hating an entire community. In all honesty, I just don't care. If you're a decent human being, I'll accept you regardless of what you identify as, what community you're a part of, or whatever it is you strongly believe in. It's all irrelevant to me."

By rationalizing harmful behavior as mere "cluelessness," he excuses public mockery, prioritizes his own narrative, and disregards the well-being of others. He minimizes the harm caused and frames genuine concerns as overreactions, presenting indifference as justification for dismissive and offensive behavior. Three years later, his words reveal that his attitude remains unchanged, demonstrating a persistent pattern of deflecting responsibility, ignoring impact, and failing to learn from past mistakes and precisely the behavior that prompted the backlash he received.

*Trigger Warning: *This section contains discussion of sexual harassment, boundary violations, and emotional abuse.

Timestamp 22:29 – Sexual Harassment Allegation

In his video, he attempts to frame the sexual allegations against him as exaggerated or false, writing:

> "I mean, talk about hyperbolic some of these stories were just all right insane."

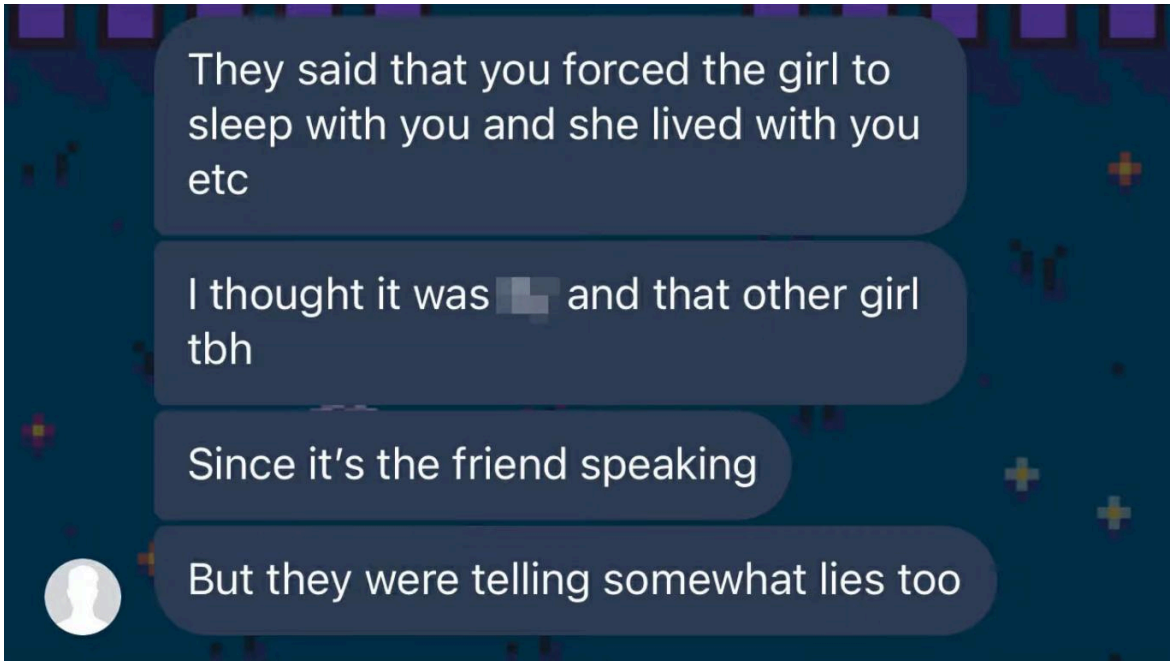
Rather than engaging with the allegations, he chooses to dismiss them outright, labeling the alleged story as "hyperbolic" and "insane". This is a classic tactic of minimization and deflection, reframing serious concerns as exaggeration to avoid accountability.



They said that you forced the girl to sleep with you and she lived with you etc
I thought it was [redacted] and that other girl tbh
Since it's the friend speaking
But they were telling somewhat lies too

Oh, but look at my screenshots. That's my story, my lived experience. The pressure, the boundary violations, and the fear I felt were very real, and the evidence proves it. At the time, I stayed in the relationship as long as I did to try to make it work, but now I recognize that his actions, driven by his hypersexual behavior, constituted sexual harassment. Throughout our DMs, my patience was wearing thin, and the repeated disregard for my boundaries made it increasingly clear that he was prioritizing his own desires over my well-being.

Ly was my alibi and my emotional support during this time, witnessing much of what was happening and helping me navigate these experiences. Yet he continues to dismiss and erase my experience, despite knowing exactly what was happening.

Even with support, his sexual outbursts kept escalating from talking about getting a fleshlight or sex doll, to the time I caught him in our apartment living room using VR to masturbate.

These messages capture my frustration and hurt, revealing a consistent pattern of disregard for my boundaries and feelings. His behavior was manipulative, self-centered, and deeply disrespectful, the same behavior he continues to dismiss publicly. At one point, I truly believed something was wrong with me, and it caused my confidence and self-esteem to plummet.

These screenshots show a pattern of sexual harassment, boundary violations, and emotional manipulation. My experience was real, and the impact on my well-being, confidence, and sense of safety was significant. His dismissal does not erase the harm these messages speak for themselves, showing a consistent disregard for my boundaries. This was not a single incident, but a documented pattern that cannot be ignored.

Even though I had moved on, his actions forced me to relive the past. By speaking out now, I can reclaim my peace and assert justice on my own terms. I share this not for sympathy, but to set the record straight and give other victims the courage to speak up. My experience is real, my voice matters, and dismissing it only reinforces the need for accountability is necessary.

SafetyBurner

Hello! I am SafetyBurner,
I am the person who made a Twitter (X) account calling out UsagiShade for past events of others being a victim and witness of online grooming done by him.

I've stated my intentions previously that my account was to come out about the grooming situation and to help anyone else hurt by him, For them to be able to come out as well, while keeping their identity and comfort safe.

As for Kat, I had intended to never share her story till she was ready, but she backed out. I entirely understand after reading what she went through, so I stopped posting about anything else involving her. When she asked me to take down her photos, I immediately deleted the small photo proof I had of her grooming & CSA (child sexual assault) situation, which was censored properly, unlike what Eddie had provided in his video.

Those photos were originally on his public Facebook. I knew of the situation when his ex friend shared about it during that time frame. Once his video came out, lacking proper evidence to back his claims, and involving misinformation about Kat, I had to come clean about her personal statement to LY when she planned to address his video with a response.

Being Groomed
I was 15-16 during the time it was going on. He was 20.

I am unable to provide photos of myself or my name out of safety concerns to avoid ever being involved with him again. The most I could provide was censored proof of my ID showing I was born in 2000.

I originally met Eddie through Tumblr. We flirted a bit online back and forth, texting. I was vulnerable, and he knew I was not mentally in the best place, but I grew attached to him. I had no idea he was dating LY or talking to other girls in this manner at the time.

We had gotten to the point to where we started exchanging and sexting nudes. I was very insecure about my body, but he's always sweet-talked me into sending them, sometimes even with proof for him that I was real. He's asked for things like writing his name on my body or paper, or other ridiculous things.

Later when I was 16, we had slowly drifted apart cause he stopped talking to me. I was heartbroken he just ghosted me after he said his gf was upset about our interactions, which is insane cause if I knew he had a gf I wouldn't have gotten involved with him, let alone I had no idea he was 4 years older than me.

I later found out from one of his best friends at the time that he showed off my nudes to him. Bragging and boasting that he obtained them like some trophy. Apparently, I wasnt the only girl at that time he'd done that to.

Other minors and my nudes were in his possession when he was 19-20, and possibly further from what I know. Unsure if he still has them, some of us are unable to come out about it due to shame and fear.

Who I interacted with:

Aside from the few tips I had gotten from LY and screenshots to back the knowledge of his interactions with Kat, the other people who talked to me were exes of Eddie or girls he messed with in the past. A lot of us no longer had the conversations from when we were minors to back out claims.

I feel a lot of youth struggle with this cause. When you're emotionally hurt by someone, you delete them completely from everything to move on. By the time we realize it's "grooming" any evidence we had is long gone. I find it extremely concerning how many of us have been in such similar situations involving him.

As for some of the people he hinted at and "censored" in his video, most of them I don't know or did not reach out to me. The fact that he has so many people he wants to throw the blame on to just proves how many are aware of his past behaviors and hold incriminating info about him.
